

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Philip E. Mosely is professor of international relations and head of the European Institute of Columbia University. The articles by Messrs. Mosely, Possony and Carrington are based upon papers presented at a conference on "Western European Integration and the Future of Eastern Europe," held in Wiesbaden in September of this year and jointly sponsored by the Foundation for Foreign Affairs of Chicago, and the Institute for Middle and Eastern European Studies of Wiesbaden.

Stefan T. Possony is director of the International Political Studies Program of the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, at Stanford University.

C. E. Carrington is former professor of British Commonwealth relations at the Royal Institute of International Affairs, London.

David J. Dallin, who died last year, is the author of numerous books on Russia. His article will constitute a chapter of a forthcoming book containing his articles and essays, entitled From Purge to Co-Existence, to be published by the Henry Regnery Company.

Ernest J. Simmons is an authority on Russian literature.

The book reviews are contributed by: J. M. Lalley, associate editor of MODERN AGE; Thomas Molnar, author of The Future of Education; Kurt Glaser, professor of government at Southern Illinois University; Henry M. Adams, professor of history at the University of California, Santa Barbara; Frank Grace, professor of political science at the University of Michigan; *C. P. THE INSTITUTE FOR PHILOSOPHICAL AND HISTORICAL STUDIES, INC., 154 East Superior St., Chicago 11, Illinois, is a non-profit corporation organized, among other purposes, to encourage and disseminate studies that are calculated to add to the understanding of philosophy, history, and related fields and their application to human endeavor.

THE INSTITUTE SERIES of scholarly treatises, entitled "Philosophical and Historical Studies", includes:

Vol. 1. A Humane Economy, by Dr. Wilhelm Roepke of the Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva.

Vol. 2. A Theory of Public Opinion, by Professor Francis Graham Wilson, of the University of Illinois.

3 good books for serious reading . . .

A HUMANE ECONOMY

the Social Framework of the Free Market

by Wilhelm Röpke

A new book by one of the leading free-market economists of the world. Röpke brings the logic of economic theory to bear on such problems as inflation, the welfare state, planning, and the undeveloped countries.

$5.00

“. . . this is an able, hard-hitting and well written account of the century-old conflict between mass society and humanist culture . . . a challenging manifesto of economic liberalism based on the hard currency of individual freedom.”

Maurice Feldman
Saturday Review

IN DEFENSE OF FREEDOM

a Conservative Credo

by Frank S. Meyer

Mr. Meyer demonstrates that the proper end of political thought and action is the establishment and preservation of freedom.

$3.95

“In an essay brilliant with destructive analysis . . . Frank Meyer re-opens the great conversation which humanity will always be ready to engage in, we hope, about the nature and scope of freedom. He writes as a man who has gone over the ground in conscience; and what he has found is that the individual, the irreducible person, is the primary reality and the sole repository of virtue.”

Richard M. Weaver

A THEORY of PUBLIC OPINION

by Francis G. Wilson

Mr. Wilson, professor of political science at the University of Illinois, presents an historical and philosophical evaluation of a concept whose overwhelming force is today peculiarly underestimated. His insights offer invaluable understanding at a time when public opinion, the very force which enables the ruled to restrain the rulers, has itself become subject to manipulation by those who would impose their will upon fellow men.
